SUPPLEMENTAL DOCUMENT

Each “song” answers one of the five essential questions, with the moodboard and associated words explaining my thoughts and the outfits more loosely fitting the theme. The first moodboard was designed to answer “What is a computer?”. WHaT = CoMPuTeR? suggests that a computer is a machine imbued with power that uses algorithms, living or motorized, to meet a goal imperfectly. The moodboard uses cyber green and black to represent traditional images of coding and algorithms, with a representation of the components of a computer in the center. The photo on the right depicts imperfection - the eyes dripping and glitching - and animation - human eyes, which are also present in the bottom left. A power imbalance is communicated through the middle left image of cyber-people running away from the viewer. Layered over these images are handwritten algorithms, representing that a computer is not just the traditional PC or laptop and that algorithms are not just the traditional Javascript or Python.

The second moodboard was designed to answer “How do we use algorithms in our lives?”. ~ALGoRiTHiMz 4 LiFe~ presents a contrast, with bright hopeful oranges and whites lighting the way for an easier, more organized life. In the midst of this illumination is mess and laziness. The images of morning and evening demonstrate that algorithms are present in all moments of the day.

The third moodboard answers “Do humans create or discover algorithms?”. CReaTe / DiSCoVeR suggests that creation is discovery, so humans discover everything that is hidden in the world. Dark colors illuminated by foggy streaks and specks represent the action of looking deeper and discovering more. In the bottom left corner is a depiction of early man - every action from the dawn of time has been an act of discovery. The eggs in the upper right represent the crux of the question, whether the chicken or the egg came first.

The fourth moodboard answers “How has the widespread use of computing technology and algorithms changed the way we work, play, and interact with other people? How much should we let technology do for us?”. The title track, “CoMPuTeR WoRLD!!!”, is deceptively cheery in its delivery, with a teal and burgundy color scheme accented with platinum and bronze that feels youthful yet dissonant. Across the board are several swirls, as work, play, and interaction are increasingly blended by the aid of technology - for better or for worse. A digital clock with a romantic message represents several things - humans can work all day and night, always available, because of technology (also reflected by a melting clock); people meet and interact through algorithmic connections (also represented by a globe covered in connections); and technology allows people to express themselves at any time from anywhere. Under that are several cell phones - a must-have to survive today. An automaton in the bottom left suggests the envelopment of humanity in technology; overreliance on technology could quickly become an issue as we replace artists with AI, partners with sex robots, and friends with robot therapist apps. Some sort of humanness should be retained. A quote, “the most complicated skill is to be simple,” reflects how algorithms do a lot of work to make everyday life simpler. Impatience, a theme continued in the fifth board, is represented in the bottom right. Finally, in the bottom middle of the storyboard are several images that represent the fragmentation and dissolving of a whole. As work and play blend together, we begin to lose ourselves, stretch ourselves too thin, overstimulate our minds, and overcomplicate every task. Yet, somehow, technology also helps us realize who we really are, dissect ourselves, see what we need and actually achieve it.

Finally, the fifth moodboard addresses “What social and legal issues have arisen due to the widespread use of computing technology and algorithms? What new issues are likely to arise in the future?”. “BeyoND THe PaLe x_X” suggests that widespread use of computing technology and algorithms result in expectation of instant gratification. Homelife and the private self are slowly becoming public property, and violence and sexual imagery are more accessible than ever before. Images of mysterious shadow-figures represent the uncertainty of the future, the closeness of complete strangers, and the expectation of dehumanization. The brown, black, and cream color scheme reflects detachment, like watching life through a lens.
